Instruction basics

- Our platform is Canvas.
- I am available during the office hours to provide help and answer your questions.
- You can also always send me emails if you have questions, suggestions or concerns.
- Another way to interact with the class outside the classroom is to use the Canvas discussion boards to communicate with me and each other.

Plagiarism

- You are allowed to:
  - Do online research, use GenAI, and use your research in your work, but you must cite the references.
  - Copy and paste short parts of references and place them between quotation marks while citing the work, when you want to make a point.
  - Help your classmates with their questions and bounce ideas.
- You are NOT allowed to:
  - Send each other your work.
  - Use any other person's work as basis.

GenAI Policy

- My approach to GenAI is to embrace it and learn to harness its power to complement and amplify your capabilities.
- I have the same expectations that exist in professional world. You are expected to understand the concepts, be able to guide GenAI, and understand and present the output.
- Any significant use of GenAI must be clearly attributed in your submissions. This should be done by including a brief AI Disclosure in your submissions stating which tool was used and how it contributed to your process.
